TYPES OF DATA PROCESSED

Browsing data

While browsing this website, the computer systems and software procedures that govern its functionality collect certain personal data items, the transmission of which is implicit in the use of Internet communication protocols.

Although the data items indicated above cannot be traced back to the identified users, they could allow for the identification of the users to whom they refer by means of reprocessing in conjunction with additional data held by third parties.

These types of data include IP addresses, the domain names of the computers utilized by the users who connect to the website, the URI (Uniform Resource Identifier) addresses of the requested resources, the time of the request, the method used to submit the request to the server, the size of the file obtained in response, the numerical code that indicates the response provided by the server (successful, error, etc) and other information relating to the user's operating system or IT environment.

The data, however, is only used for the purposes of processing anonymous statistics regarding the use of the website and ensuring that it functions properly and is immediately deleted after it has been processed. Such data could potentially be used to ascertain liability in the event of any hypothetical IT crimes carried out against the site: with the exception of such circumstances, the data regarding web contacts will not be stored for more than seven days.

Data provided voluntarily by the user

When a voluntary email message is sent to one of the addresses indicated on this website, the Data Controller comes into possession of the sender's e-mail address, which is required in order to reply to the user's request, as well as any other personal data that may be contained within the message itself.

Upon request, specific summary information will be progressively reported or displayed on the pages of the website that are dedicated to particular services.

No personal user data is acquired by the Website in this respect.

No cookies are used to divulge personal information, nor are any so-called persistent cookies or user tracking systems used.

The use of so-called session cookies (which are not stored permanently on the user's computer and are erased when the browser is closed) is strictly limited to the transmission of session identifiers (consisting of random numbers generated by the server) which are necessary to allow for the safe and efficient consultation of the Website.

The so-called session cookies used by this Website do not involve other computer techniques that could compromise the confidentiality of the user's browsing and do not allow for the acquisition of the user's significant personal data.

OPTIONAL NATURE OF DATA CONFERMENT

Save for that which has been specified above regarding browsing data, the user is free to provide the personal data indicated in the request forms to the data controller or any other information that may be included within communications sent to the Offices when requesting informative materials and/or other communications.

Failure to provide such data may impede the user's request from being fulfilled.

For the sake of completeness, it should be added that in some cases (not involved in the ordinary management of this Website), the Authorities may request data and information in accordance with Article 157 of Legislative Decree No. 196/2003 (http://www.garanteprivacy.it/garante/doc.jsp?ID=1311248#art_157), for the purposes of controlling personal data processing.
